

The Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies in collaboration with California Newsreel, National Association of County and City Health Officials, American Public Health Association, The Praxis Project and Opportunity Agenda request your company at a special premiere screening of the opening episode of:

UNNATURAL CAUSES: Is Inequality Making Us Sick?

Date: Thursday, March 13, 2008

Time: 5pm (networking reception) 6pm-8pm

Place: Kaiser Family Foundation-Barbara Jordan Center

1330 G Street, NW, Washington, DC 20005

(3 blocks east of the White House and half a block west of the Metro Center stop)

A panel discussion will follow the film

The four-hour documentary series, to be broadcast by PBS, investigates the sources of our nation's health inequities how health and longevity are correlated with class status, the additional risk burden imposed by racism, and how solutions lie not in more pills but in tackling our growing inequality. During this event we'll view the opening episode "In Sickness and in Wealth," shown in its entirety, for the first time in Washington DC, and discuss tools and tactics that can assist social justice advocates address the roots of our health inequities.

Panelists: To Be Announced

Please RSVP to Felicia Eaves, feaves@jointcenter.org-(202)789-3530 by February 29, 2008-

Seating is limited!!

For more information, please visit www.unnaturalcauses.org